Tid Bits

Did you know you could be fined for not wearing your pin, if President Mitch finds an old, old photo? Ask Dave Horsely.

Jan Gage has been asked to serve on the International Convention Promotion Committee for Lisbon.

Bill Jansen always adds to the clubs benefit.

Gloria Quinan can remember her Rotary pin even under duress!

1928 History

12 May Dr. John Engle had charge of the program. After inducting Al Craveth (sic), classification industrial loans, into the club membership, he announced a musical program put on by Miss McGinity and her Placer High School students.

This Week's Program

The program this week was brought to us by Bryce Jessup, President Emeritus of William Jessup University. William Jessup University began during the Great Depression of the 1930's. Dr. Eugene Sanderson, who had already started three other colleges, saw the need for a Bible college in the greater San Francisco Bay Area. He purchased two large houses on adjacent lots at Fifth and San Carlos Streets in San Jose, across from the campus of San Jose Teachers College (now San Jose State University). Over the course of several years, he improved the property and built a chapel for the faculty and student body yet to come.

In January of 1939, Sanderson asked William L. Jessup to carry on the vision and start the College. Bill and his wife, Carrie, moved from Visalia to San Jose to open the College. On September 20, 1939, classes at San Jose Bible College began with fourteen students. The curriculum focused on the study of the Bible and preparation for church vocations.

During the next few years, growth at San Jose Bible College created the need for a new and larger campus. Seven and one-half acres were purchased at Twelfth and Virginia Streets in San Jose. The first three buildings were erected and put into use by February 1951. The first on-campus housing, Beach Memorial Hall, a dormitory for women, was dedicated in 1960.

During the 1960s and 1970s new buildings included a second dormitory, a new cafeteria, the Memorial Library, the Tiffin Center, a multipurpose gymnasium, and a classroom building. The College received accreditation with the Accrediting Association of Bible Colleges (now the Association of Biblical Higher Education) in 1962.

Dr. Bryce Jessup, the son of the founder and the College's fifth president began his leadership in 1984. He has led the University to its greatest growth in enrollment, facilities, and curriculum. Multicultural programs focusing on leadership training were added to the curriculum for students from various cultural heritages in and around San Jose. Students from more than thirty different birth countries enrolled. The School of Professional Studies (formerly Degree Completion Program) for working adults was added in 1996 to meet the educational needs of adult learners and now comprises nearly one-third of the student population.
